

In English - In London

Did you know that there´s a difference between it´s raining and it rains? After learning with Samantha Robinson, students will be able to use both sentences in the right way. In this series Samantha Robinson is in London. In front of the Buckingham palace she explains how the present progressive is made and uses it with pedestrians. She asks a variety of people from all walks of life: „What are you doing?“ As this is an authentic situation, people answer naturally in present progressive. Later on she explains the simple present and asks the pedestrians: „What do you normally/usually/regularly do?“ As this is a natural way of using simple present, Samantha listens to a lot of people answering in simple present. At the end of the film you´ll see whole interviews with both: simple present and present progressive.
